1.1 Introduction

The Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail is a component of the National Trail System of the United States. Established in August 1990 by Public Law 101-356, the trail extends from the U.S. Mexico border near Nogales, Arizona to San Francisco, California. The trail covers approximately 1,200 miles and passes through 19 counties in the states of Arizona and California.

One of the counties along the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail corridor is Pima County, Arizona. Pima County, in partnership with the National Park Service (NPS), has been an active participant in the development of a 70 mile segment of the trail. With the preparation of this Master Plan, Pima County has embarked on an active program to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and easements and to construct the Pima County segment of the national historic trail. The culmination of this process will be a continuous, constructed, National Park Service certified trail through Pima County, Arizona.

1.2 Historical Overview

The Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail commemorates the route taken by Anza in 1775-76 when he lead a group of colonists from what is now Horcasitas, Sonora, Mexico to San Francisco Bay. The expedition was undertaken for the purposes of developing an overland route from Mexico to Alta (northern) California.

Prior to the expedition, Franciscan friars representing New Spain had traveled north along the Pacific coast and had established five missions and two presidios in Alta California. These settlements depended on outside supplies for their survival. Initially, these supplies were delivered by sailing vessel but due to the prevailing winds and ocean currents along the coast, the voyages north were hazardous and the results uncertain. An overland route was pursued as an alternative to the ocean voyages.

Upon settling in the San Francisco Bay area, the colonists constructed the Mission San Francisco de Asis (Mission Dolores).

An initial exploratory expedition was conducted under the leadership of Juan Bautista de Anza in 1773. The expedition traveled north into present day Arizona to ascertain the feasibility of an overland route for supplies and for larger contingents of settlers. The expedition successfully reached the Mission San Gabriel and the existing trail that connected the various missions between San Diego and Monterey.

As a result of the success of the exploratory expedition, Anza was granted the authority to command an expedition of settlers who would travel overland and establish new settlements in the San Francisco Bay area of northern California. Anza began recruiting for the expedition in Culiacan and Sinaloa and gathered the party in Horcasitas, Sonora, which is located approximately 175 miles south of the current United States - Mexico border.

A party departed Horcasitas on September 29, 1775 and moved north to Tubac in present day Arizona. Upon their departure from Tubac on October 23, 1775 the party consisted of 240 to 300 persons accompanied by approximately 355 head of cattle and 695 horses and mules. The expedition traveled north through what is currently Pima County generally following the west bank of the Santa Cruz River.

Diaries of the expedition were kept by Juan Bautista de Anza and Fray Pedro Font, a Franciscan priest and member of the expedition party. The detailed descriptions included in these diaries of the lands traversed and the locations where camps were sited have been used by historians to identify, with a high level of certainty, the route of the Anza expedition.

While traveling through present day Pima County, the expedition camped at five different sites. These campsites were located at Canoa, Mission San Xavier del Bac, Mission San Augustine del Tucson, Tuquison, and Los Morteros. The trek continued north and west to California, ultimately arriving at Monterey on March 10, 1776. In spite of the difficulties of the 130 day trip, all members of the party survived except for one woman who died in childbirth and was buried at the San Xavier del Bac Mission.

After an exploration of the East Bay, Juan Bautista de Anza and a few other members of the expedition party returned to Mexico. The remaining members settled at the site of the Mission San Francisco de Asis (Mission Dolores) and began the construction of the mission, the presidio, and their new homes.

The colonizing expedition was historically significant in that it was an integral part of Spanish foreign and colonial policy in the New World. It served to expand the territories controlled by Spain while preventing colonization of Alta California by England, France, and Russia. It also resulted in the expansion of language, customs, traditions, and general expressions of Hispanic culture in the New World.

1.3 Establishment of the National Historic Trail

The Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail was established by an act of the United State Congress in 1990. The act approved the Feasibility Study for the project and authorized the establishment of a National Historic Trail from Nogales, Arizona to San Francisco, California. The congressional authorization was followed by the preparation of a Comprehensive Management and Use Plan and Final Environmental Impact Statement (April 1996). This document calls for the development of a multi-theme, broad-outreach approach to trail development.

The multi-theme element of the plan provides for the development of both an automobile route and a continuous multi-use recreational trail. This Master Plan is for the multi-use recreational trail component of the project.

The Pima County section of the automobile route is shown in Figure 1-B. The automobile route through Pima County was developed by the staff of the Cultural Resources Office of the Pima County Administrator's Office with input from the National Park Service. (See Figure 1-B). The automobile route is not the subject of this document.

The broad outreach component of the trail plan allows for the interpretation of the Anza expedition as well as the interpretation of other events that occurred along the trail corridor, from prehistory to the present day.

1.4 Status of the Pima County Trail Segment

The Pima County segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail is identified as an element of the Eastern Pima County Trail System Master Plan which was adopted by the Board of Supervisors in February 1998. The Trail System Master Plan shows the approximate alignment of the Anza Trail through Pima County.

Additional planning work has been performed by Pima County staff related to certain portions of the trail within Pima County. This work has resulted in the certification of three trail segments located within the Tucson urban area. These segments follow the Santa Cruz River Park and extend from Irvington Road to Ajo Way, from Silverlake Road to Mission Road, and from Speedway Boulevard to Grant Road.

Planning for the balance of the Pima County section of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail is the subject of this Master Plan.

1.5 Project Participants

This Master Plan represents the collective input of many individuals and departments. The project participants, and their role in the project are as follows:

Cultural Resources Office, Pima County Administrator's Office:

The staff of the Cultural Resources office provided technical expertise related to the history of the Juan Bautista de Anza Expedition and the authentic expedition route. Staff also participated in on-going reviews and in coordination meetings with various local jurisdictions and stakeholders.

Pima County Natural Resources, Parks, and Recreation Department:

The Natural Resources, Parks, and Recreation Department is responsible for coordinating all trail planning and development with the county. As such, the Department's staff was involved in all aspects of the Master Plan development. Specific areas of input included; the provision of information related to previously acquired easements and rights-of-way, recommendations for trail alignments, recommendations for trail development standards, and assistance in project coordination with local jurisdictions and stakeholders.

National Park Service (Pacific West Field Area Office):

The Superintendent of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail provided background information related to the trail and the certification process and also participated in coordination meetings with the Tohono O'odham Nation. Input related to trail development standards and interpretive themes were also provided by the National Park Service.

Local Jurisdictions (Town of Sahuarita, City of Tucson, and Town of Marana):

The proposed Pima County trail segment extends through the Town of Sahuarita, the City of Tucson, and the Town of Marana as well as through portions of unincorporated Pima County. Representatives from each of these communities were consulted during the planning process and provided specific information related to local trail system planning and development.

The Anza Trail Coalition:

Members of the Anza Trail Coalition provided expertise related to the history of the expedition and assisted in the field reconnaissance work associated with the Project.

Project Consultant:

McGann & Associates, Landscape Architects and Planners provided overall coordination for the Master Plan project and was directly responsible for field reconnaissance, mapping, coordination with local jurisdictions, and Master Plan report preparation.

1.6 Trail Segment Through the Tohono O'Odham Nation

An eight mile segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail corridor is within the San Xavier District of the Tohono O'Odham Nation. Preliminary discussions with the San Xavier District Planning Department staff were conducted during the course of this project. The concept of extending the trail through Tohono O'Odham land was reviewed during the course of these discussions.

Planning Department staff agreed to present the concept to tribal officials for further consideration. As of the date of this report, the Nation had not provided Pima County with information regarding their interest in participating in the trail development project. While a continuous trail is a recommendation of this Master Plan, the plan also recognizes the nation's authority to allow, or not allow, the Juan Bautista de Anza Trail to cross tribal lands.

While respecting the Nation's authority as it relates to trail development on tribal lands, this Master Plan does illustrate the approximate route of the Anza expedition across Tohono O'Odham lands. A more practical alternative to this authentic route is shown. These trail routes do not presuppose that one or both of these trails will be approved by the Nation at some future time. Rather, they are presented as alternatives to be reviewed and considered by tribal authorities and impacted land owners or allottees.

Section 2. Master Plan for Pima County Segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail

- 2.1 Project Funding The preparation of this Master Plan for the Pima County segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail was funded by a Pima County Cultural Resource and Historic Preservation Bond. This bond, Number CH-30, was approved by Pima County voters in 1997.
- 2.2 Purpose of Master Plan Document This Master Plan was prepared to facilitate the acquisition of rights-of-way and easements and to provide standards for the construction of the Pima County segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail. Specifically, this plan was prepared to:
- Reestablish and acknowledge the authentic route of the Anza expedition through lands currently within Pima County, Arizona.
 - Identify and recommend a trail alignment through Pima County that closely approximates the authentic route of the expedition while at the same time being a feasible route for the construction and operation of a multi-use recreational trail.
 - Accurately map the proposed trail alignment and superimpose the trail alignment on current aerial photographs and land ownership parcel maps.
 - Identify the owners of public and private lands along the proposed trail corridor.
 - Identify specific sites along the trail corridor that can be developed and used for public access to the trail.
 - Provide specific recommendations and standards for the development of the Pima County segment of the trail.
- 2.3 Anticipated Users of Master Plan The agencies, departments, and individuals listed below are anticipated users of this Master Plan. The manner in which these entities are likely to use this document are as follows:

Pima County Development Services Department

The Pima County Development Services Department reviews and recommends approval, approval with conditions, or denial of Development Plans and Subdivision Plats for new projects within Pima County. From time-to-time the Department is required to review projects located within the proposed Anza Trail corridor. Upon adoption of this Master Plan by the Pima County Board of Supervisors, the Department will have a basis for requiring the dedication of rights-of-way or easements, for requiring the construction of proposed trail segments, and/or for the development of public trail access nodes as a condition of Development Plan or Plat approval.

Pima County Natural Resources, Parks, and Recreation Department

The Natural Resources, Parks, and Recreation Department is directly responsible for the planning, design, and construction of trails within Pima County. This Master Plan will allow the Department to budget, or pursue other funding, for the detailed design, engineering, and construction of Anza Trail segments.

Office of Cultural Resources, Pima County Administrator's Office

The Office of Cultural Resources will be the primary entity that coordinates the certification of segments of the Anza Trail within Pima County. This Master Plan will ensure that as trail segments are constructed, they will be eligible for certification by the National Park Service.

The Office of Cultural Resources also pursues funding for various projects such as the development of historic trails and/or interpretive programs. This Master Plan will support future applications for development funding.

Local Jurisdictions Other than Pima County

The City of Tucson and the Towns of Sahuarita and Marana will be active participants in the implementation of this Master Plan. Accordingly, this document will be used by these jurisdictions to formulate trail-system, open-space, land-use, and other plans that are consistent with the concept of an uninterrupted multi-use Anza Trail from the southern to the northern boundary of Pima County.

The National Park Service

The National Park Service is charged with providing overall coordination and administration of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail. This trail advances the concept proposed by the trail's Comprehensive Management and Use Plan and will facilitate future certification of completed trail segments within Pima County.

The National Park Service has also expressed an interest in using this Master Plan for the Pima County segment as a model for the planning and implementation of the trail in other jurisdictions along the 1,200 mile trail corridor.

Citizen Trail Advocates and Landowners

In keeping with the concept of local development of the trail, with input and assistance from the National Park Service, local citizens will be able to use this Master Plan to advance their advocacy of land-use and other decisions that support the development of a continuous trail corridor through Pima County. Additionally, landowners impacted by the proposed trail will be able to formulate immediate and long-range plans for their properties that are consistent with the adopted Master Plan for the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail.

2.4 Plan Implementation

It is anticipated that the implementation of this Master Plan will occur over a period of many years. As a first step, the Master Plan will be officially adopted by the Pima County Board of Supervisors. This will allow it to be considered when Development Plan and Plat approvals for lands along the corridor are requested.

Upon formal adoption by Pima County, adoption of the Master Plan by the City of Tucson, the Town of Sahuarita, and the Town of Marana will be requested. As a follow-up to Master Plan adoption by these jurisdictions, the Anza Trail concept will be integrated into local trail plans, comprehensive plans, and other planning documents developed or updated by local jurisdictions.

Finally, with adopted or approved plans in place, it will be possible to begin the process of designing and constructing as funding becomes available. Pima County will actively pursue and will allocate funds, as-available, for the incremental construction of the proposed trail.

2.5 Trail Master Plan Updates and Amendments

Given the dynamic nature of urban growth and development in Pima County, it is anticipated that conditions will arise that make implementation of portions of this Master Plan, as presented herein, impossible. As such, periodic updates and amendments to this Master Plan should be considered. The scope of these updates and amendments should be as-needed to respond to changed conditions and should be made with the input and assistance of the National Park Service.

3.1 Source Data for Project Mapping

The Pima County Technical Services Department has developed an extensive Geographic Information System (GIS) database for land based features within Pima County. This database includes digital aerial photography and mapping for a variety of features including: public rights-of-way, real estate parcels, land ownership, topography, and various biological and hydrological features. This existing data was used to create the Master Plan base maps for the Pima County segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail.

It should be noted that while the Pima County Technical Services Department database is quite comprehensive and generally very accurate, it is also in the process of being updated to improve its quality. As of the time this Master Plan was prepared, there existed a minor registration discrepancy between the aerial photography coverage and the real estate parcel maps. As a result of this discrepancy, the line work associated with certain roads and parcels was offset from the roads and ground features as they appeared on the aerial photographs. Although minor, these offsets are visible on many of the maps included herein.

The Pima County Technical Services Department has initiated a process that will correct the registration of data layers. However, the adjusted data was not available at the time this Master Plan was prepared. Consequently, the proposed trail alignment may appear on the maps to cross or encroach on properties that it will not cross or encroach on in the field. As negotiations are conducted regarding specific right-of-way or easement acquisitions, surveyed field checks may be required to resolve this issue.

3.2 Preliminary Trail Routing Studies and Field Reconnaissance Work

As an initial step in the trail planning process, information provided by the Pima County Cultural Resources Office related to the authentic route of the Anza expedition was used to mark-up aerial photographs with a draft alignment for the trail. This information was supplemented with data related to existing easements which represented fixed or established corridor segments within which the Anza Trail will be developed.

The marked-up photographs were then taken to the field to verify and/or amend the draft alignment. Field reconnaissance work was performed primarily on foot but bicycles were also used in certain locations.

A variety of factors were considered in evaluating the appropriateness of the draft alignment. These factors included:

Visual Quality and Character of the Corridor:

To the extent feasible, the trail alignment was selected to be within a corridor that offered views and an overall visual character that was similar to what may have been experienced by the original expedition participants. In nearly all cases, some modern development was visible from the proposed trail alignment. This was particularly true within the Tucson urban area. However, vegetation and land forms were used to reduce the visibility of urban development to the greatest extent practical.

Soil Conditions:

Anticipating the use of the trail by pedestrians, equestrians, and bicyclists, trail alignments were selected to traverse lands with soil conditions that were not excessively sandy or loose. This was not possible in all locations, such as at tributary wash crossings. The import and placement of trail surfacing materials and/or the processing of on-site soils to create stable trail surface conditions will be necessary in some locations.

Drainage Channels and Bridge Requirements:

In-as-much-as the general alignment of the Anza Trail will follow the west bank of the Santa Cruz River through Pima County, the alignment will necessarily cross numerous tributary drainage channels. An effort was made to locate the trail in areas where pedestrian / equestrian bridges across the tributary channels will not be required. This was possible in some, but not all, areas. As a consequence, bridges over certain tributary washes and constructed drainage channels will be a necessary part of the Anza Trail development.

Public Access:

The success of the Pima County segment of the Anza Trail will be based, in part, on the ability of the public to gain access to the trail for recreational activities. Accordingly, consideration was given to routing the trail to locations where public access to the trail would be feasible. Areas where public trailhead parking lots and equestrian staging areas could be developed were also identified.

Public Safety:

When routing a trail through an urban environment, it is inevitable that the trail will need to cross existing streets and thoroughfares. Pedestrian, equestrian, and bicycle crossings of these streets represent a significant public safety issue. Accordingly, consideration was given to a trail alignment that allowed for grade-separated crossings of the Anza Trail and urban streets. Typically this occurred at roadway bridges crossing the Santa Cruz River. Existing or new ramps under these bridges will be utilized to enhance public safety along the Pima County segment of the Anza Trail.

3.3 GPS Recording of Proposed Trail Alignments

As individual trail segment alignments were established in the field, the location of these alignments was recorded using GPS (Global Positioning System) equipment. Fixed points such as section corner monuments and roadway centerlines were utilized as reference check points.

A Trimble GeoExplorer 3 (Model 38376-00) GPS device and associated software were utilized. The accuracy of the unit utilized is one to five meters. The trail alignment data was downloaded and integrated with the Pima County database using AutoCad Map software.

3.4 Review of Draft Trail Alignments

Upon completion of draft trail maps, a series of coordination meetings were conducted with the consultant team and Pima County staff members participating. During these meetings the proposed alignment of the trail was reviewed and, where appropriate, adjusted. Additional field reconnaissance and GPS recording work was then performed as required to field verify and map adjusted trail locations.

3.5 Final Trail Alignment Maps

Upon completion of the follow-up field work, final mapping work showing the proposed alignment of the Anza Trail was performed. Trail features, such as historic campsites and proposed trail access locations were also shown on the final trail maps. The final trail maps are included in Section 5 of this Master Plan Report.

4.1 Introduction As a National Historical Trail, the user or visitor experience is an important planning and design consideration. As such, it is important that the visual and spatial character of the trail experienced by current users be similar to that experienced by the original expedition party members.

Within the context of Pima County today, replication of the desert wilderness experienced by the expedition is not possible. Short segments, however, that offer natural settings and long range vistas that are similar to those experienced in 1775 are possible. The reestablishment of this visual and spatial character along the trail corridor was considered in the preparation of the development standards provided herein.

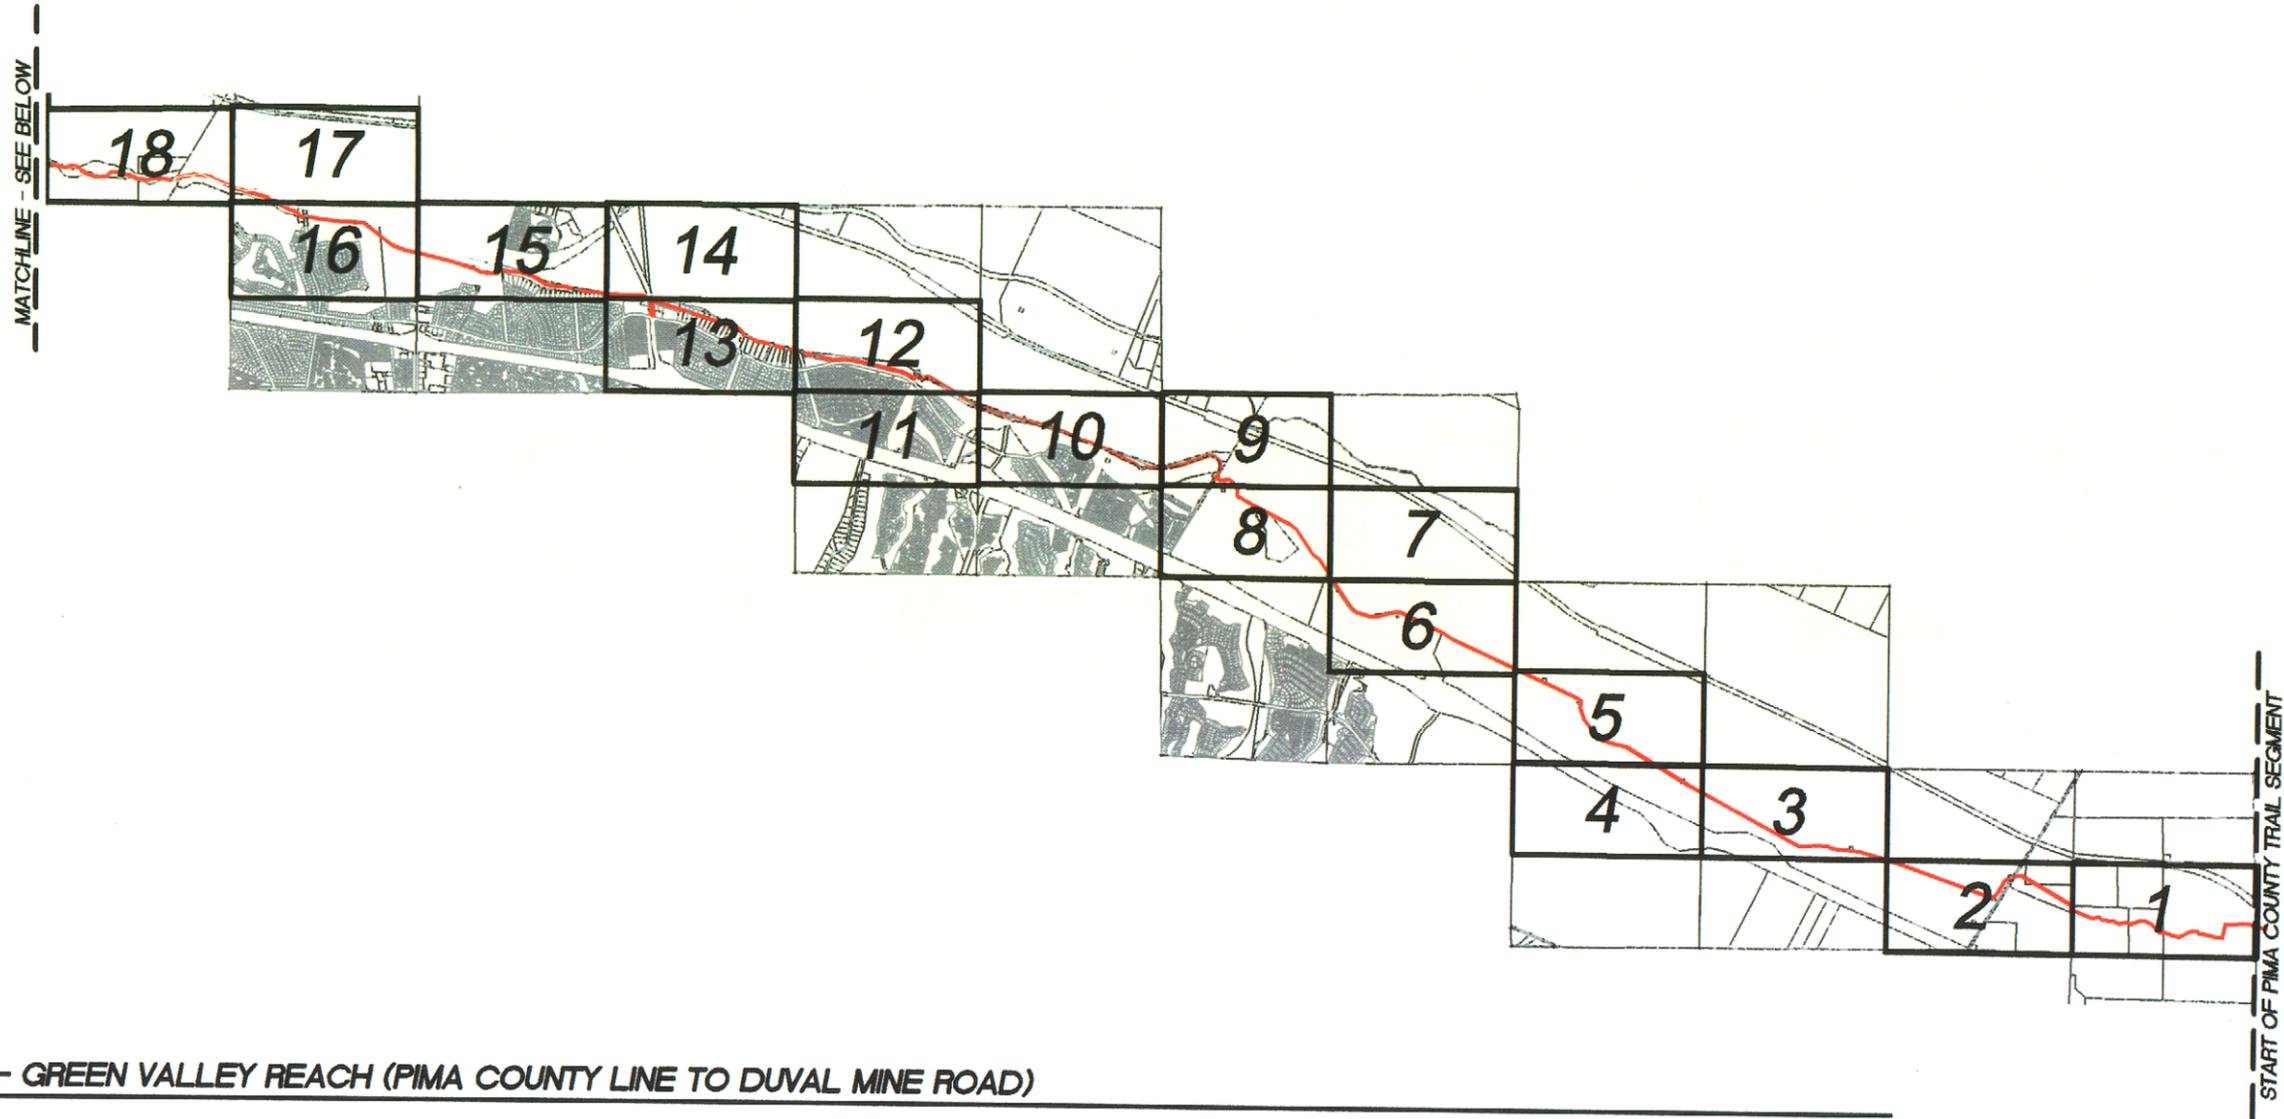

The safe accommodation of intended trail uses was also considered in the preparation of the proposed development standards. These use types, and the intensity of use, will vary from urban to rural sections of the trail. As such, recommendations standards for urban and rural areas have been provided.

5.1 Introduction	Provided on the following pages are maps of the proposed alignment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail through Pima County, Arizona. In addition to the proposed alignment, information provided on the individual maps includes: existing trail corridor easements, historical campsite locations, proposed public access and staging area locations, jurisdictional boundary lines, and the location of trail segments previously certified by the National Park Service.	5.6 Public Right-of-Way Information	The rights-of-way associated with State of Arizona, Pima County, City of Tucson, Town of Sahuarita, and Town of Marana highways, streets, and drainageways are shown on the individual trail segment maps. Street names have also been provided to assist users in identifying specific areas along the proposed trail corridor.
5.2 Map Scale and Coverage	The individual trail maps are presented at a scale of 1" = 400'. Each map covers one-half section of land along the corridor. Section and half-section lines were used to delimit each area map so as to facilitate searches within the map set. The use of section and half-section lines to delimit individual maps will also facilitate the integration and/or comparison of trail maps with other mapping systems, files, and databases.	5.7 Real-Estate Parcel Lines	The boundaries of real-estate parcels are included on the individual trail maps. For all parcels along the proposed trail corridor, the Tax Symbol Number, as it appears in the Pima County database has been included on the map. These Tax Symbol Numbers reference the Tax Identification Number for the subject parcel as assigned by the Pima County Assessor.
5.3 Aerial Photography	The digital aerial photographs utilized in conjunction with the trail mapping was taken in 1998. In most locations, it accurately depicts on-the-ground features as of the date of this Master Plan. In some locations, new development has occurred along the trail corridor and ground features are different than the features shown on the photographs. Field verification and/or utilization of updated aerial photography will be necessary as detailed designs and engineering plans are prepared for individual trail segments.	5.8 Parcel Ownership Information	In addition to the Tax Identification Number, the parcel owner's name and address have been provided for each parcel of land that the proposed trail will cross. The Tax Identification Number can be used to query the Pima County database in the future to determine if ownership changes have occurred along the trail corridor.
5.4 Jurisdictional Boundaries	The Pima County segment of the Juan Bautista de Anza National Historic Trail extends through five separate jurisdictions. These are: Pima County, the Town of Sahuarita, the Tohono O'Odham Nation, the City of Tucson, and the Town of Marana. The jurisdictional boundaries associated with these communities are shown on the attached maps.	5.9 Key Maps	Key maps are provided on the following pages to facilitate a search for individual trail segment maps. Four key maps have been provided as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Green Valley and Sahuarita Reach Key Map • Tohono O'Odham Reach Key Map • Tucson Reach Key Map • Marana Reach Key Map
5.5 Section Lines	Section lines that delimit each individual trail map are shown on the attached segment maps. The section, township, and range illustrated on each segment map are also noted on the individual drawings.	5.10 Map Sequencing and Numbering	The individual trail maps begin at the southern boundary of Pima County and proceed northward in the direction of the original Anza expedition. The maps are numbered sequentially and follow the proposed alignment of the trail.
